Pictured above is the story hour group which met during the summer at the Crawford County Library. In the front row from left to right are: Mike McNamara, Douglas Bilsby, Michelle Dorsch, Janey Pettengill, Sharen Rasmussen, and Nancy Ann Funck. In the second row are: Michael Dorsch, Christine Southwell, Evelyn Southwell, David Goss, Marilyn Marshall, Patricia Christen, Deane Gibson, Mary Ann Gothro, Suzanne Rasmussen, and Kathryn Rasmussen. In the rear are Mrs. Paul Dorsch with daughter, Ann and Mrs. Arthur Crouch.

The last story hour for the summer was July 31. Many of these children will be going to school in September. There were 34 enrolled, with 18 or 20 present each time. Mrs. Paul Dorsch and Mrs. Arthur Crouch were the readers. Two were present each reading. They were Michael Dorsch and Michelle Dorsch. Six were absent but once; they are Kathryn Rasmussen, Suzanne Rasmussen, Sharen Rasmussen, Nancy Ann Funck, Evelyn Southwell, and Christine Southwell. Those absent were David Goss and Michael McNamara. We have had a lot of fun and finished Thursday with a little party.

Michigan To Fight Chicago's Plan To Divert More Great Lakes Water

MICHIGAN WILL FIGHT to the last drop Chicago's plan to divert more water from Lake Michigan.

"In view of the exceedingly low levels of the Great Lakes at the present time, this basin needs every drop of water that belongs to it," Attorney General Paul L. Adams said.

Adams became the rallying point for Michigan's fight shortly after he was appointed to fill the vacancy created when Thomas Kavanagh was elevated to the Supreme Court.

The latest battle centers on Chicago's plan to increase its diversion of Lake Michigan water by 1,000 cubic feet per second. But Adams fears other governmental units will be encouraged to increase their diversion if Chicago is allowed to take more water out of Lake Michigan without returning it.

Adams said the "future prosperity of the Great Lakes Basin is in grave danger of deterioration" unless the Great Lakes states insist upon adherence to a firm principle against diversion.

Already, Illinois' DuPage county water commission has given indications it intends to take water from Lake Michigan and divert it to several communities, said Adams. And then instead of returning the water to Lake Michigan, it would discharge the water into the Illinois Waterway.

Several years ago there were rumblings that some communities in Ohio were planning to dig canals or pipelines from Lake Erie to get water for industrial and agricultural uses. But Adams said he has been assured by Ohio officials they will not "countenance any such diversion."

Adams said the day may come when it will be impossible to halt all of the demands on Great Lakes water — "unless the Great Lakes states insist at all times that there be no invasion of the Great Lakes Basin by areas and states who form no part of that basin."

"In its avid and insatiable desire to literally steal the water from the Great Lakes Basin so that it may cheapen the cost of sewage disposal, Chicago is seemingly blind to the great injuries which its efforts are inflicting upon the people in the other Great Lakes states," Adams said.

ANOTHER MICHIGAN WATERWAYS problem has been occupying Adams' attention lately.

The specific problem is centered along the Huron River between the Huron River and Rockwood — but the outcome of its solution will have an effect throughout Michigan in the years ahead.

Michigan's health Commissioner, Dr. Albert E. Heustis, has asked Adams if the state has power to order municipalities after their sewer and water supply systems.

Heustis wants to work out a regional solution to pollution problems along the Huron River. The health commissioner said it is "generally impracticable and perhaps even unlawful" for communities to seek independent solutions in the face of the multiple use being made of the river for sewage treatment, water supply and industrial wastes.

The "Water Wonderland" is destined to have more such problems ahead, state health officials say. That's why they're anxious to get a ruling from Adams soon. Geography, limitations of natural resources, extensive population growth and conflicting uses all are part of what health officials say is a "complicated problem."

A SHOWDOWN IS NEARING on another complex problem involving conflicting uses of Michigan's natural resources.

The conservation Commission is faced with a decision on whether copper mining should be allowed in the Upper Peninsula's 55,600-acre Porcupine Mountains State Park.

Arguments on the matter were heard in June and July. Since then, Michigan State University has been surveying the tourist and "wilderness" aspect of the arguments against the mining. The Michigan Economic Development Department has been looking into the economic values.

Sportsmen, campers and naturalists have opposed the proposal. Upper Peninsula lawmakers have been vocal in support.

The immediate issue is a request by the Bear Creek Mining

Co. for leases on 933 acres of park land and 5,260 acres of Lake Superior bottomland.

But the touchy problem of where to draw the line between economic and outdoor interests is the one that really worries the commission.

HOME AGENT'S NOTES

"Consumers Marketing Information Cooperating with County Extension Service"

It's an open and shut case for sandwiches in August. Do you belong to the "open face" clan or to the "closed face" camp for sandwiches? Either way, sandwiches are "it" when you plan a meal that is quick, hearty and nutritious. And in hot weather, sandwiches can be the "coolest."

"Simply wonderful sandwiches" can be anything from bread and butter to bread and elaborate concoctions of cheeses, fruits, and nuts. Whatever your August sandwich appetite takes, there are plenty of "makings" wherever you look.

Grocery stores in your town display about 25 different kinds of bread. How many do you use for your sandwiches? White and whole wheat bread are always good... but just for a difference, you may want to try rye bread with caraway seeds. For those fruit and cheese sandwiches you can choose frozen date-nut bread, canned brown or orange date bread.

Sandwiches in the freezer are handy when you want to pick-up, pack-up and picnic. Just remember that best sandwich fillings for freezing are sliced or ground meats, fish, chicken, peanut butter and cheese. When you freeze those sandwiches, be sure the bread slices are spread with plenty of butter. Butter doesn't just improve the flavor and add nutrition... it keeps the sandwich fillings from soaking the bread as sandwiches thaw.

Add mayonnaise and crisp vegetables to the sandwiches after you take them from the freezer. If you freeze them in the sandwiches, mayonnaise and salad dressings separate and vegetables lose crispness and flavor.

Calorie counters needn't skip the fun of sandwiches. Just be careful with the fillings (whipped cream fillings probably won't be one-of-your-choices) and use thin bread slice your own if you need to. Then too... crisp lettuce leaves do very well as "something to hold the fillings together." Is everyone else having bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwiches? You have the same... only stack the bacon and tomato slices between the lettuce leaves... it's a good sandwich.

pleases the calorie counters as well as the "Dagwood" cult, and is much easier on the cook. Just set out a choice of breads and fillings and let the family and guests prepare their own.

Hearty jumbo sandwiches always please the man of the family. A triple-decker made with toast is a favorite when the first layer is a slice each of turkey and corned beef, the second layer tomatoes, lettuce and sweet onion, and third layer, sharp cheddar cheese and mustard.

Inflation In The Future?

The people whose business it is to survey the American economy and to forecast its future course now find the plus signs, so to speak, outnumber and outweigh the minus. With virtual unanimity, they say the nation of the recession has been reached and recovery is now begun. About the only differences of opinion are to do with how far and how fast the upswing will

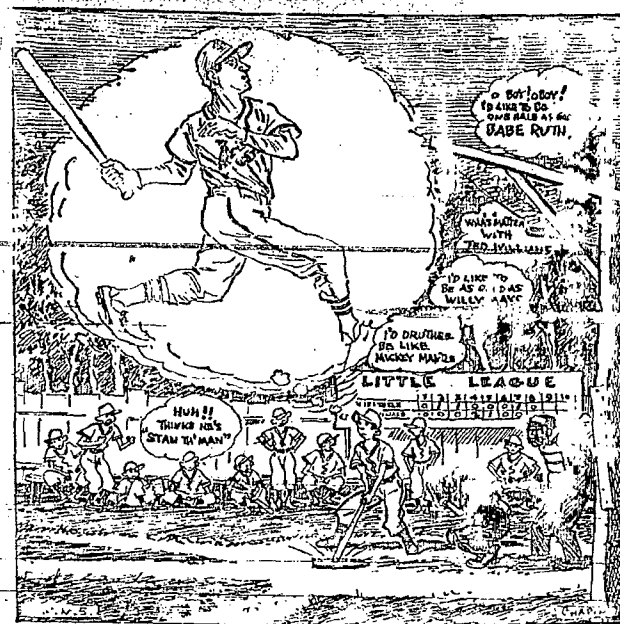

Fortune magazine, for example, forecasts that new orders in total output and industrial production will be established inside a year's time. It anticipates a rise of $20 billion in the gross national product in the next six months, followed by a further $30 billion rise in '59. If that happens, we will be producing goods and services at an annual rate of $470 billion by the end of next year. Specific factors mentioned by Fortune include increased defense and public works spending; an improvement in new and used car sales; a rise in employment during May, and the fact that twice as many industries increased production in May as reduced it. J. A. Livingston, the syndicated business analyst recently asked 60 leading economists — representing banking, industry, labor, investment, government and national institutions — what they see ahead. The census adds up to steady, though not spectacular, movement in business activity generally. According to them, reports Mr. Livingston, "A year from now, almost all indexes will be straining to break through the 'highs'."

Too much for specific forecasts. But, in the minds of many people, there is another element in the economic picture that is far from bright. Jack Mabley of the Chicago Daily News sees matters grimly: "It is generally agreed that the recession has run its course and we are in an upturn. What is coming may be worse than the recession."

That view is based on a fear that can be explained in a very few words — more and greater inflation. Today's dollar is worth a trifle less than half of its value 20 years ago. If the decline continues at the same rate, the dollar will be worth only a quarter in terms of buying power 10 years from now. "After that comes 50s," Mr. Mabley writes. "Life insurance, social security and savings may become almost worthless." And he thinks, "that will happen unless we, through our government, take drastic action to stop it."

The government is certainly not doing that now, as Mr. Mabley goes to show. A huge deficit is looming, the debt limit is likely to be raised to something like $300 billion. And it is an historical fact that circumstances such as these have brought disaster after disaster to once great nations. The classic example of modern times is the German inflation that followed World War I. Ultimately, a loaf of bread cost millions upon millions of marks.

HERO WORSHIPERS

What is the primary cause of inflation and what is the cure? Mr. Mabley answers these questions tersely: "Inflation comes from oversized government. The way to stop inflation is to reduce the size of the government." But, "We are not reducing. We are increasing."

And it is clear, though he does not say it in so many words, that he is convinced government won't act until public opinion and demand force it to.

All is in readiness for the presentation of the two-act all-time musical comedy "Listen To Me." Following is the cast of characters, all of whom are well known to Grayling folk: Mr. Banks, hotel manager, Paul Hendrickson; Dick Marshall, heir to hotel, Howard Schmidt; Alice Richards, heiress, Dorothy Roberts; Bill, a bell-hop, Donald Robinson; Billie, a maid, Clara Atkinson; Frank Weldon, villain, Floyd Loskos; Miss Stuart, villainess, Thelma Chappel; Mrs. Sylvester, widow, Mrs. Roy Trudgion; Elbert Twiss, befuddled guest, Neil Olson; Mr. Corey, lawyer, Wesley Sammons. Guest chorus, Benita Chappel, Jean Peterson, Loretta Sorenson, Don Gothro, Don Smock, Jack Callahan. Dancing chorus, Jerry Peterson, Naomi Wheeler, Monica Hewitt, Katherine Peterson and Phyllis Hewitt. In the clever fire-fly dance Virginia Peterson, Mary Montour, Virginia Skingley, Laura Rasmussen and Beatrice Peterson take part. Mrs. C. G. Clippert is pianist with Mrs. Roy Milnes as soloist. Edna L. Horton, director.

With the issuing of President Roosevelt's order last week authorizing the purchase of all remaining privately-owned lands on Isle Royale and allocating $705,000 for that purpose, the last remaining obstacle to the establishment of the wild Lake Superior island as a national park seems to have been surmounted. The establishment of the Isle Royale as the twenty-fifth national park of the United States will bring to an end 14 years of effort. Site of prehistoric copper mines, the island is a virgin wilderness and a haven for moose and all forms of northern wild life.

SEN. POTTER

REPORTS

From Washington

SECURE AND HAPPY older citizens are a dynamic national asset. Our system of old age insurance benefits, financed jointly by employees, employers and the Federal government, has paid off handsomely in self respect and productivity of our people.

Two years ago, the provisions of my bill to expand social security benefits were enacted into law.
I am continuing this effort and before the week is out will speak on the Senate floor in favor of expanding benefits to conform with increased living costs. Right now the Senate Finance Committee is studying a house-passed bill raising benefits 7 per cent and boosting payroll taxes. I am confident that Senate approval will be given our proposals to strengthen the program.

FARMERS TOOK A GIANT
STEP toward increased prosperity last week when the Senate unanimously passed my bill to accelerate new industrial uses for surpluses through research. The Federal government spends millions each year teaching farmers how to increase production - in fact, has triggered a technological explosion on the land. Now we must give proper attention to developing new outlets for the bounty pouring from our vast agricultural areas.

All of us are familiar with what research did for the dying citrus industry. The quick-freezing process, perfected in part through research conducted in the Agriculture Department, reversed an economic trend. Also through imaginative research, the lowly soybean has become one of today's big-money crops. Recognizing this, the Senate gave approval to spending a few millions for sur-research which in turn will open billions in new markets for our farmers.

If the House passes the measure, and prospects seem good, I predict that the President will sign the bill. We wrote the legislation, in fact, on the basis of a Presidential Commission's recommendations outlining 106 broad fields of research and development holding promise for farmers.
They include cereal grains, cotton, oilseeds, meat and animal by-products, sugar, fruit, vegetables, edible tree nuts, white potatoes, poultry and eggs, crop residues,
forest products and new crops.

HUMANE SOCIETIES term present slaughtering methods of livestock and poultry "barbaric and immoral." Last week I voted for a bill providing kinder, quicker slaughtering methods. I also supported amendments limiting ritual handling in accordance with religious faith. Under this legislation, meat packers must render animals mercifully and quickly unconscious before the kill is made. This reform is long overdue.

QUANICASSIE, Indian for "one tree," at one time lay at the end of an important Indian trail which followed the shore of Saginaw Bay to the edge of an impassable swamp. Back in the early days, it was one of the favorite hunting and fishing grounds along the shores of Lake Huron.

Best wishes.
CHARLES E. POTTER,
United States Senator

Here
are the facts
to prove it...

Actually... no matter where you live... nobody... and that means NOBODY... can give you more for your dollar than your own home business firms. Let's look at the reason for this advantageous... to you... situation:

ANY MERCHANT . . . anywhere . . . is ordinarily going to sell goods for some more than he pays for them.

ON AN AVERAGE . . . when you spend a dollar in any retail store . . . here or anywhere else . . . about 70 cents of it pays for GOODS, and about 30 cents goes for rent, taxes, donations, hired help, etc., and a few cents (the national average is about 5 cents) pays the proprietor for his work, and for his investment in goods and equipment, credit losses, etc.

NOW . . . when you spend your dollar at home, you get the same 70 cents worth of merchandise that you would get for it anywhere else.

AND THE OTHER 30 CENTS stays here too, to help you pay for schools, churches, roads and streets; to vitalize the community so your property . . . or your job . . . is worth more; to keep more people here to share civic work and expense, and to serve YOU when you sometimes direly need their knowledge and their skills.

ONLY when you buy in YOUR OWN HOME community do you get back most of this 30-cent retail handling charge . . . and often a great deal more, as your job or your business prospers and your social life broadens with the growth of the entire community.

We've got an important following!

Men and women, young and not so young . . . all of them owners of property—homes, cars, farms, factories, furnishings, equipment and implements of many kinds.

Because they know that their possessions represent dollars; dollars which may be lost today, tomorrow or next week to any of a number of disasters.

And we're out front with the very best of insurance advice, service and protection!

Yes, ours is the calibre of insurance coverage that keeps our clients worry-free, loss-free and right in step with their plans for a future full of shiny new possessions and unimpeded prosperity.

Local Residents More Marriage Wanted

NEW YORK, July 29 — Crawford County is a marriage-minded county. Its men and women get married earlier and stay that way longer than people in most parts of the United States. What's the reason? One explanation has to do with income. As offered by the Bureau of the Census, which collected data on the subject, "men with better-than-average earning power have the best chances of becoming marriage partners."

And, continues the bureau, once they are married, they are encouraged by financial responsibilities to seek more substantial livelihoods.

The statistics show that with

Our Congratulations...

to the Grayling Bowhunters, the Bear Archery Company and the Crawford County Chamber of Commerce for the highly successful promotion of the Thirteenth Annual National Field Archery Tournament.

It was a very big undertaking but with cooperation between the sponsoring groups and good old-fashioned hard work, especially by Fred Bear and his associates, it was completed with the highest degree of efficiency and with all attending enjoying the most favorable tourney in field archery history.

Our warm thanks to the above mentioned three also for the fine increase in business which we enjoyed. We were extremely happy to have been able to serve the many fine folks attending the the Tournament here.

Again . . . our heartfelt congratulations and our warmest Thanks.

better economic status, under normal family conditions, husbands and wives have longer lives and more years together than they would otherwise.

In Crawford County, 77.5 per cent of the men in the population, over the age of 14, have been married, as of the latest official tabulation.

Of both men and women locally of marriageable age, 80.2 per cent are listed as having been married. The rest are in the never-have-been married group.

This proportion is relatively high. It is greater than the 76.8 per cent average in the United States and than that in the State of Michigan, 76.2 per cent.

Getting married is a rising thing—a fair-size family has been steadily growing in popularity in recent years. Since World War II, the median age at first marriage has decreased by one and one-third years. It now stands at 23 years for men and 20 years for women.

As the Census Bureau points out, the likelihood of marriage increases as income goes up. Its figures, for men over 35, show that 97 per cent of those in the highest income group were married as compared with only 71 per cent in the lowest income class.

How this is borne out in Crawford County is indicated by local incomes, which were at a high level. They averaged $1,042 per capita after taxes last year, as against $998 per capita five years earlier.

Vero Beach, Dodge City, Iowa

Holman Stadium—Vero Beach, Fla.

A summer playground in the winter months and a vacation spot the year round—that's Vero Beach, in the picturesque Indian River country of Florida.

Centrally located on Florida's East Coast, Vero Beach's proud boast is its weather and climate. The city is in a favored climate of equitable temperatures, the average being 85.8 in winter and 80.7 in summer.

Sunshine and salt water are mixed well at Vero Beach. The beach area of this vacation city is located on a beautiful island, 36 miles long and one-half to one mile wide. It is connected to the mainland by a new steel and concrete bridge which with its wide sidewalks and night illumination make it a popular round-the-clock fishing spot.

Good Accommodations. A variety of accommodations, from cozy trailer camps and motor courts to luxurious hotels and clubs are available to visitors, and facilities are not overcrowded during the summer months. Population is about 8,500 and all facilities—municipal, business and tourist—are modern and complete.

The Indian River country is famous for its orange groves, but sugar cane, truck crops and cattle are important economic factors.

Vero Beach is also a familiar dateline in sports, for here is the winter home of the Los Angeles Dodgers. Called "Dodgertown," a complete spring training camp with facilities for 700 to 800 ball players and 100 staff personnel is generally conceded to be the largest and most advanced baseball school in the world.

A tropical paradise at Vero Beach is McKee Jungle Gardens, where visitors explore the trails where exotic orchids grow wild with thousands of rare plants and trees from the tropics of the world.
